Q.206-215. In the following passage there are blanks, each of which has been numbered. These numbers are printed below the passage and against each, five words are suggested, one of which fits the blank appropriately. Find out the appropriate word in each case.

The right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education (RTE) Act, 2009, which came (206) effects in April this year, is meant to transform the education sector and take India closer to the goal of universal schooling. But with admissions to the new academic session just (207) the corner, it is fast becoming clear that (208) well-intentioned ideas into (209) will take some doing. For a start, the guidelines for admission under the RTE prohibit schools from conducting any sort of student profiling. The stress on a random yet justifiable admission process means that school will have to resort to something as quirky as a lottery system. However, leaving admission to a good school to pure (210) will only incentivise manipulations, defeating the very essence of RTE.

The main problem facing the education sector is that of a resource crunch. The provisions for ensuring universal access to education are all very well, (211) we have the infrastructure in place first. Brick and mortar schools need to precede open admission and not the (212) way around. In that sense legislators' assessment of ground realities is (213) target when they endorse the closure of tens of thousands of low-cost private schools for not meeting the minimum standards of land plot, building specifications and playground area as laid out in the RTE Act. Instead of bearing down (214) on private schools failing to conform to abstract bureaucratic criteria, efforts to bring about universal education should focus on upgrading and expanding the existing government school infrastructure to accommodate all. Only then can we ensure the much-needed supply-demand (215) in the education sector.

Q.226-233. Read the following passage carefully and answer the question given below it. Certain words/phrases have been printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

A new analysis determined that the threat of global warming can still be greatly diminished if nations cut emissions of heat-trapping greenhouse gases by 70% this century. The analysis was done by scientists at the National Centre for Atmospheric Research (NCAR). While global temperatures would rise, the most dangerous potential aspects of climate change, including massive losses of Arctic sea ice and permafrost and significant sea-level rise, could be partially avoided.

“This research indicates that we can no longer avoid significant warming during the century said NCAR scientist Warren Washington, the study paper’s lead author. “But, if the world were to implement this level of emission cuts, we could stabilize the threat of climate change”, he added.

Average global temperatures have warmed by close to 1 degree Celsius since the pre-industrial era. Much of the warming is due to human-produced emission of greenhouse gases, predominantly carbon dioxide. This heat-trapping gas increased from a pre-industrial level of about 284 parts per million (ppm) in the atmosphere to more than 380 ppm today. With research showing that additional warming of about 1 degree C may be the threshold for dangerous climate change, the European Union has called for dramatic cuts in emission of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases.

To examine the impact of such cuts on the world’s climate, Washington and his colleagues ran a series of global studies with NCAR-based Community Climate system Model (CCSM). They assumed that carbon dioxide levels could be held to 450 ppm at the end of this century. In contrast emissions are now on track to reach about 750 ppm by 2100 if unchecked. The team’s results showed that if carbon dioxide were held to 450 ppm, global temperatures would increase by 0.6 degree Celsius above current readings by the end of the century. In contrast, The study showed that temperatures would rise by almost for times that amount, to 2.2 degree Celsius above current reading, if emissions were allowed to continue on their present course. Holding carbon dioxide levels to 450 ppm would have other impacts, according to the climate modeling study.

Sea-level rise due to thermal expansion as water temperatures warmed would be 14 centimeters (about 5.5 inches) instead of 22 centimeters (8.7 inches). Also, Arctic ice in the Summertime would shrink by about a quarter in volume and stabilize by 2100, as opposed to shrinking at least three-quarters and continuing to melt, and Arctic warming would be reduced by almost half.

Q.226. Why has the European Union called for dramatic cuts in carbon dioxide and greenhouse gas emissions ?

- (1) As global warming is not issue of concern
- (2) As the temperatures may rise almost by an additional one degree and this lead to severe climate change.
- (3) As the NCAR has forced the European Union to announce the cuts.
- (4) As all the nations have decided to cut emissions of carbon dioxide
- (5) None of these

Q.227. What would NOT be one of the impacts of cutting greenhouse gas emissions ?

- (1) Temperatures will stop soaring
- (2) Ice in the Arctic sea would melt at a slower pace
- (3) The rise in sea level would be lesser
- (4) All of the above would be the impact
- (5) None of these

Q.228. What would be the impact of unchecked greenhouse gas and carbon dioxide emissions ?

- (1) The temperature would rise from the current temperature by 2.2 degrees Celsius
- (2) The sea-level would rise by about 5.5 inches
- (3) The arctic ice would stabilize by 2100
- (4) The arctic ice would reduce by one-fourth
- (5) None of these

Q.229. What can be the most appropriate title of the above passage ?

- (1) A study of the rise in water level
- (2) A study of rise in temperatures
- (3) A study of the effects of greenhouse gas emissions
- (4) A study of the Arctic region
- (5) A study of change in seasons

Q.230. Which of the following statements is true in context of the passage ?

- (1) At present the carbon dioxide emission about 284 ppm
- (2) The carbon dioxide emissions will be about 450 ppm at the end of this century if unchecked
- (3) The carbon dioxide emissions was about 380 ppm during the pre-industrial era.
- (4) The carbon dioxide emissions will be about 750 ppm at the end of this century if unchecked
- (5) None of these

Q.231. What does the scientist Warren Washington mean when he says “we could stabilize the threat of climate change ?

- (1) Climate change can be stopped completely
- (2) Climate change can be regularized
- (3) Climate change and its effects can be studies extensively.
- (4) The ill-effects of the change in climate can be minimized
- (5) None of these

Q.232. Why did Washington and his colleagues conduct a series of studies ?

- (1) Because they realized that the temperature increase was almost about 1 degree
- (2) So that they could stabilize the climate change
